

Joint Statement of the American Chambers of Commerce in support of the Three Seas Initiative

SLOVENIA, JUNE 2019

The Three Seas Initiative is moving forward with the common goal of improving the connectivity and cohesion of the twelve partner countries in Central Europe and the wider European home. Projects that support improved infrastructure, diversified and secure energy sources and the growth of the digital realm will deliver tangible benefits to the citizens of the Three Seas countries and to the European Union as a whole.

Significant resources are earmarked for projects throughout the region, a strong signal of commitment by the Three Seas governments. To fully deliver on this intent, a clearly defined role for private companies and capital is critical. Properly structured projects, clearly defined jurisdictions and business-driven management will ensure the involvement of the expertise, financing, and execution private investors can provide.

Our companies in the American Chambers of Commerce throughout the Three Seas region are delivering on cross-border technology, trade, transport, energy, digital market and cyber-security projects every day. We support the goals of the Three Seas Initiative to build a more integrated, prosperous and secure region within a growing Single Market. Our companies are local throughout the region, as are our people, anchoring our commitment to economic growth, the creation of value and opportunities and enhanced national security.

American Chambers throughout the region stand ready to help facilitate dialogue to involve the right firms, technologies, know-how and capital in focused projects. As investors, we deliver this consistently in the region and look forward to doing so with the Three Seas Initiative and its member countries.
